Chamberlain Asks 'Deeds, Not Words'

London (C.P.)—The Chamberlain government reviewed the prime minister's ambitious program to obtain limitation of Europe's staggering rearmament and ensure peace.

It was too early, observers agreed, to expect any reaction from Hitler to the feeler thrown out by Mr. Chamberlain yesterday in his statement to the House of Commons in which he asked for deeds and not words from Berlin in support of peace.

Mr. Chamberlain told the House the government's policy of peace through negotiation "is succeeding."

After a day long debate the House gave him what amounted to a vote of confidence in his dealings with dictator states and on non intervention in Spain by voting 258 to 133 to uphold the government when Labor forced a division on a motion to adjourn the House.

Mr. Chamberlain said he was willing to discuss Germany's "grievances," which are principally its demand for colonies, if Hitler would "enter into an arrangement for limitation of armaments."

Richard Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House that agitation for Ukrainian independence does not, in the British view, threaten European peace.

The King received Mr. Chamberlain in audience at Buckingham Palace.

Priest and Flock

Join Presbyterians

Fontenelle, Que. (C.P.) — Rev. Real D. Anjou, former Roman Catholic parish priest of this little Gaspe settlement, admitted yesterday he had joined the Presbyterian Church and that 80 members of his old parish joined him in the move.

Asked when he had severed his connection with the Roman Catholic authority in the Grspe diocese, Rev. Mr. D'Anjou said he was not prepared to discuss over the telephone either the time or the reasons for his change of denomination.

The Refugee Problem

The result of representations recently made to the federal government, the people of this country, through their representatives in Parliament, are likely to be faced in the immediate future with the question of dealing with a problem which may be fraught with important consequences to the future welfare of the Dominion.

The question referred to is that of giving admission and accepting into citizenship a percentage of the estimated 1,300,000 refugees and victims of political persecution now in Germany, former Austria and Czechoslovakia. While the estimate of 1,300,000 has been given, there is reason to believe that the figure is underestimated and may reach 1,500,000 as more information becomes available and the transfer of these unfortunates to safer harbours gets well under way.

Of the estimated number to be transferred to other countries as at the end of 1938, it is reported that about 600,000 are Jews, the balance being non-Aryan Christians, Czechoslovaks and political and religious refugees. The question has been brought to the front in this country by the Canadian National Committee on Refugees and Victims of Political Persecution, headed by Senator Cairine Wilson which stated in their brief to the government that they "are not urging any large scale mass immigration, but a generous policy in admitting carefully selected individuals or groups of refugees to sanctuary on Canadian soil."

In view of the fact that in more recent years there has been a strong body of public opinion in Western Canada opposed to letting down the barriers, even to British born immigrants, the question of dealing with the one which deserves very careful consideration in the light of all facts available and of the probable results before any definite decision is reached.

Factors To Be Considered

While the humanitarian aspect of the question is one which undoubtedly will weigh heavily in the minds of a great many people, there are other factors which must also be given consideration and these are economic, social and political facts of the problem.

That the national committee has carefully weighed these phases of the question is quite evident in the brief submitted to the government, for on these bases they have presented some strong arguments in support of their plea for permitting a substantial number of these outcasts to seek refuge in this country and to give them an opportunity to rehabilitate themselves in Canada.

Considering the question from an economic standpoint, the committee points out for example that many of them have been able to save some of their capital, that many of them are highly educated business and professional men and have the initiative and courage to start and develop new industries, that their ranks include skilled artisans in pottery, glassware, fine leatherwork, many forms of chemicals, specialized textiles and dyes, and other specialized vocations that are world markets, and that with their capital they will be in a position not only to create new industries but to give employment to some of our own unemployed. In support of this contention, the committee states that 11,000 refugee Jews who have migrated to Great Britain have established industries giving employment to 15,000 Englishmen heretofore unemployed.

To what extent immigrants of this class, if permitted to enter, would settle in Western Canada, it would be difficult to say, though undoubtedly some of them would gravitate to the west. The degree to which they could bring to bear upon the development of the natural resources and convert them into useful products and the extent to which they could make use of their skilled knowledge in such fields would determine their value to the country. Some of the professional men undoubtedly would be in a position to make some contributions to the sum of scientific knowledge and practice. "The technical skill of the Czechoslovak refugees from the Sudeten areas," the committee reports, "is based upon long training in one of the finest technical systems in the world which demanded eight years school education, three years apprenticeship and the completion of rigid examinations. From such sources," the committee adds, "would be selected the expatriates who would be permitted to enter Canada under conditions which would ensure that they would not become charges on the public."

Not A Subversive Influence

As for the political consequences of such immigration, it is pointed out that at least the great majority of these refugees are in their present plight because they are supporters of the democratic form of government to which Canada is heir and to which the people of this country subscribe and it is, therefore, a reasonable assumption that they are not likely to be a disturbing political element nor to tend to weaken the forces which uphold the Canadian form of government, especially after their experiences in the old world.

As intimated at the outset the question is one which is deserving of careful consideration since it appears likely that some policy towards these people will have to be evolved in the near future. If they are to be allowed to come to these shores and to make their home here, it is essential that it be on the basis of careful selectivity, to ensure that results in the future will not be regrettable.

Harmless If Left Alone

Octopus Will Not Attack Unless It Becomes Frightened

Next time you are deep sea diving and an octopus meets up with you, hide your bare hands under your armpits, says W. L. Clark, in the Windsor Star.

The octopus extends its feelers to find food. If it reaches you, and does not touch actual flesh, it will draw away and not attack, but, if you should draw away while the octopus is touching you, the octopus at once becomes frightened and starts to enmesh you with its long feelers. And as these are equipped with vacuum cupped devices, an octopus can keep clinging until after death.

The octopus is not dangerous, if it is left alone. But, like so many frightened animals, it will fight when cornered.

Russians Buy Bananas

Bananas are being sold on the streets of Moscow for the first time since the Great War. Thousands of young people who never had seen a banana before lingered to marvel at the fruit. They stood in line to buy samples at 7½ rubles a pound (about $1.30 at the official exchange rate). The bananas came in a 150,000-pound shipment from Colombia.

Italian poultry vendors never deal in other meats. They sell the rooster combas separately.

Using New Method

Cinders Or Gravel Provide Bed For Flowers And Vegetables

Plants and flowers grown without soil might seem an anomaly to most gardeners. Yet that is just what is being done in one London, Ont., greenhouse. Magnificent roses, stately pink carnations, geraniums, snapdragons, larkspur and begonia are flourishing in beds of cinders and crushed quartz rock.

If all this seems puzzling, the answer is "nutrient solution methods of greenhouse crop production." That's the scientific name for this method of plant growth. Donald Gekie, in charge of the Goodholme Greenhouses in Broughdale, told how horticulturists are day by day expected to be able to dispense with soil altogether and raise flowers, plants and vegetables solely by means of carefully balanced chemical solutions. The work is unique in the Dominion and only in a few places in the United States are similar experiments going on.

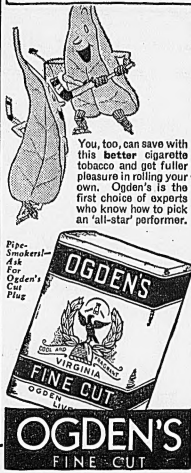

Supply And Demand

The Toronto Star says Canada had 37,000,000 pounds of butter on hand in nine principal cities on December 1. In Germany the population has been rationed down to an allowance of a quarter of a pound per week. The people of the world could have plenty of every food product if civilization learned how to distribute what the world is capable of producing.

There must be some truth in the old saying that this is a small world. At least it is not large enough to accommodate all the people who would like to leave Germany.

New Zealand eats more meat, and butter per capita than any other nation in the world.

Temptation To Criminals

Too Many Revolvers In The Hands Of Private Citizens

The Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, recording in his annual report registration under the law of 168,389 pistols and revolvers in private ownership, asks their owners seriously to consider "whether they have any really good reason for retaining these weapons." As Commissioner Wood points out pistols and revolvers "are the cause of many fatal accidents in homes, and form the source from which criminals secure by theft their arms with which to commit their crimes. In many instances," he says, through the present registration law it has been possible to trace back to their original owners weapons in the possession of men put under arrest, perhaps a thousand miles away.

The Commissioner reports that registration of revolvers is proving of value "far beyond expectations" in the tracking down of criminals, and that is so much to the good. But obviously so long as this enormous source of supply remains in existence guns will find their way to criminal hands and crime will flourish. Owners of registered weapons should give thought to the Commissioner's words. Do they feel they are justified in retaining these guns, which serve no useful purpose in Canadian civil life and are a constant temptation to criminals?—Ottawa Journal.

Spirit Of Pioneers Badly Needed In World To-Day

If inheritance and environment together shape the destiny of man, then those aged virtues known as initiative, perseverance and determination, are without any significance whatever. In spite of what biologists and psychologists preach, man and woman have risen to great heights and carried with them the handicap of bad parentage and soul-killing surroundings.

There is too much talk about what the country is doing for youth and too little thought given to what youth are doing for their country. It is not fair to deny youth an opportunity for service and a place in the economic and industrial world. However, youth on the other hand must be prepared to do something for their country and create positions for themselves as they did in years past when it was almost as hard as now to get a start in life.

There is a tendency in these times for youth, and for adults as well, to expect something from the government or from society handed to them on a silver platter, and in any country, where role and relief have been established the pioneering spirit, supported by initiative, courage, and determination, is fast becoming a thing of the past.—Farmer's Advocate.

SHARP PAINS SHOT THROUGH KNEES

Woman Suffered 10 Years

"Since coming here from England 10 years ago," writes a married woman, "I have suffered badly from rheumatic pains. I bought medicine, lotions, liniments, and have taken concoctions until I was tired spending my money. I heard of Kruschen Sals so often, that I thought one day I'd try that. By this time my knees were frequently full of terrible pains. I bought a bottle of Kruschen, and took a teaspoonful every morning. It had no effect. But my husband said 'Persevere! Give it a chance to act.' Well, I did and before long my knees were nearly normal. I kept on, and believe me I am not like the same woman. I walked for miles the next day and felt fine, whereas before I could hardly walk across the floor."

What more need be said about the relief that Kruschen Sals can bring to sufferers from the pains and stiffness of rheumatism?

Age Of Manitoba

Judged By Metallic Elements The Province Is Quite Ancient

Geologists have found a way of estimating the age of the earth by calculating the rate at which the metallic element uranium in pitchblende disintegrates into helium and lead. Judged by such measurement, pitchblende, discovered in Manitoba, is 1,770,000,000 years old.

Another test, using thorium, a rare earth metal which is also radioactive, gives an age for Manitoba rocks of 1,750,000,000 years.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Pigeon Flew Wrong Way

Released in Holland to fly to Denmark, a homing pigeon flew west instead of east and was found exhausted in Berwickshire, England. The bird was cured for until able to resume its flight. The finder attached his card to its leg. Word has been received in Berwickshire from the owner saying the pigeon reached home safely.

The word "meander" (meaning "to wander") is taken from the name of a river in Thracia, which has a very winding course.

Finland Preserving Forests

Making Sure This Source Of Wealth Will Be Continuous

Finland is farming its forests. It is cutting only as much timber as will grow naturally within the year—and in this fashion hopes to keep its forests as a continual source of wealth, said Ahti Mecklin, director of the Finnish Forest Service, and Dr. Eino Saari, professor of Forest Economics at the University of Helsinki on a visit to Canada.

Both are making an investigation of Canadian winter methods of lumbering. "You have a reforestation problem on this continent," Professor Saari said. "We, in Finland have none, because our law does not permit a man to cut more lumber from his land than the year's natural increase."

"The law actually says that if land is cut to a point where it will not regenerate itself by natural seedling, then the owner is forced to plant seedlings, and if he will not do so then the Government will do it for him and charge the costs against him. Forests can also be closed to cutting for periods as long as five and ten years at a time."

"The result of these laws is," he continued, "that our farmers, who own most of the timber lands, have been brought to consider that their timber is part of the farm's crop. Consequently they are very careful with it."

Boost Aviation Industry

New Secret Process For Molding Planes Is Announced

George Meyercoed, veteran of the aviation industry, disclosed at Chicago that he had used a secretly developed process based on plastics to manufacture eight or 10 planes. They had been flown successfully for more than a year, he said.

The new method was based on the moulding of thin veneers of woods into compound curvatures under heat.

Meyercoed, president of the Casselco company of Chicago, said by using this method "one plant of average floor space could turn out more fuselages than all the aeroplane manufacturers in the world."

"Mass production of 10 fuselages a day could be started in two weeks or a month."

Wings and fuselages thus made were described as being waterproof, much lighter and without rivets or other projections which cut speed.

St. Lawrence Seaway

Would Provide A Contribution To Defence Of North America

Representative Francis Cushman (Rep., New York) said that development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project would provide a substantial contribution to the defence of the North American continent. "This great undertaking," he said in a statement in the Congressional record, "offers the United States and Canada a new, secure and land-locked coastline, every foot of which is potentially defensible and provides a safe haven for airplane bases, submarines, destroyers and other war craft. It further provides opportunity, if need be, of building vessels of all types within the security of the lakes basin."

Should Canada
Admit Refugees

The Canadian National Committee on Refugees and Victims of Political Persecution held its first meeting in Ottawa, December 6 and 7th, 1938, and passed certain resolutions which were later transmitted to the Canadian Government. In the third of these it expressed the belief that the immigration of carefully selected individuals or groups of refugees to Canada will prove of inestimable value in our national economy by introducing skilled workers, and new arts, crafts and industries.

In this statement we enlarge upon the grounds of the belief thus expressed, but would at the outset call special attention to the fact that we are not urging any large scale mass immigration, but a generous policy in admitting carefully selected individuals or groups of refugees to sanctuary on Canadian soil.

Ottawa, Jan. 16 — Presenting a new approach to Canada's economic problems, including unemployment, a committee headed by Senator Cairine Wilson today submitted a plan for national progress based upon historical precedent.

While recognizing the humanitarian aspect of the refugee problem, and the widespread Canadian sentiment for action, the plan revealed today has been developed more from the standpoint of its value to the Dominion. Essentially, it proposes that Canada attract, from the ranks of those leaving European countries for political reasons, expatriates equipped with capital and knowledge, or technical skill, who would launch industries not operating in Canada at present.

Other advantageous to be gained are outlined as follows:

Creation of employment. The brief quotes Sir Samuel Hoare as stating that 15,000 Englishmen today are employed in new jobs created by the a mission in recent months of 11,000 skilled refugees;

Development of increased outlets for Canadian raw materials and for partially processed or processed Canadian goods;

Increase in domestic consumption of agricultural products, both by increased population and increased purchasing power.

Dairymen Plan

Annual Convention

The annual Convention of the Alberta Dairymen's Association will be held in the Palliser Hotel, Calgary, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, February 7th, 8th, and 9th. Arrangements and plans were discussed at a committee meeting in the Palliser Hotel on Wednesday at which Mr. Sweeney, Deputy Minister of Agriculture was present.

Among the outstanding speakers at the Convention will be Dr. W. E. Petersen of the Faculty of Agriculture, University of Minnesota who will speak to the general convention on Tuesday evening and to the Producers' Section on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Petersen is an eloquent and forceful speaker and is highly qualified in matters pertaining to milk and cream production. His address on Tuesday evening will be broadcast over Radio Station C. F. C. N. The Producers' Section will also have on their programme Dr. J. F. Booth, head of the Economics Division of the Marketing Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, who will speak on recent surveys that his staff has made pertaining to milk and cream production costs. Mr. W. C. Cameron, Associate Director of the Dominion Government, will speak to the Buttermakers' Section. Mr. J. F. Singleton, Associate Director of Marketing for Canada and Mr. Lorne A. Gibson, Dairy Commissioner for Manitoba will be present to address the Manufacturers' Section.

The complete programme arranged under the supervision of Mr. D. H. McCallum, Dairy Commissioner for Alberta, will be announced shortly. McCallum, who has only recently been appointed to this office, will attend the Convention and meet the delegates and speak briefly to the various sections.

Arrangements are being made for one of the largest attendances in the history of the Convention and the programme, both from the point of view of outside and local speakers, excels in items of

A. I. A. MEETING

The Cereal A. I. A. will hold a public meeting in the Cereal Community Hall on Wednesday, Feb. 8th at 2:00 p. m. A. Newman, Dominion Livestock Fieldman, Lacombe, will discuss Warble Fly control and other matters pertaining to livestock. C. A. Lyndon, Provincial Livestock Commissioner, Edmonton, and a Poultry man from Provincial Department of Agriculture will speak. Other representatives from Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture are also expected to be present. The question of seed wheat will be taken up at this meeting. All farmers are particularly urged to be present.

Sees Restriction Of

Wheat Needed

Faced with a world surplus of 1,200,000,000 bushels, the necessity of imposing some sort of restriction on wheat production, even as a matter of self-preservation, is rapidly becoming apparent, according to Leonard D. Nesbitt, publicity director of the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Addressing the South Alberta Land Inspectors' Association at their annual dinner meeting at the Renfrew Club last evening, Mr. Nesbitt explained that the existing surplus can be attributed to farmers raising "so much food that was badly needed."

Remarking that when the price of wheat was set by the Canadian Wheat Board last fall the market price at Winnipeg was 87 cents and now is 57 cents, the speaker explained that the government faces a sizeable loss.

That loss, in view of recent marketings, may amount to 20 cents per bushel on the 250,000,000 crop, he suggested.
